ICN room brings opportunities to Sigourney

By Adam Hames

Over the past summer, Indian Hills Community College moved their satellite office to our campus. This means that any Sigourney citizen who is enrolled in an ICN (Iowa Communications Network) or on-line class through Indian Hills Community College may use our Career Academy building and the ICN room.

According to the Indian Hills Community College website, the ICN is a statewide fiber-optic telecommunications network used to provide voice, video, data, and WAN connections, as well as Internet services that link from Indian Hills classrooms to County Service Centers (like ours) and other locations around the state of Iowa.

Indian Hills Community College paid for all the renovations that were made to the ICN room. Our Sigourney students mainly use the ICN room for college classes, most of which are taught in the morning.

The door is locked from both the inside and outside and only Indian Hills Community College employees can open them. There is also a security camera in the room.
