ICN students earn college credit

Riley Carman

S-FHS continues to offer college classes through the Iowa Communication Network (ICN) to juniors and seniors. The classes are run through Hawkeye Community College and Northeast Iowa Community College.

"I think they are a good decision to take because they are free to the students, so that saves you $300 per college course. The credits can transfer to anywhere in the state," says Chris Gitch.

Each semester of class counts as one college credit to the student.
